

Bradley J Oostindie, MA, is the Founder and Clinical Director of Ready To Focus. As a 1994 graduate of the Wheaton College Graduate School Clinical Psychology program, Mr. Oostindie has been in practice as a Master's level Psychologist in the State of Michigan for nearly 20 years. In 2005, he trained at the ADD Centre in Toronto with Dr. Lynda Thompson, one of the leaders in the neurofeedback field. Since that time, he has specialized in the area of neurofeedback and biofeedback, working with thousands of neurofeedback clients, developing programs to administer treatment in academic, office, and home based settings.

Previous work for Mr. Oostindie includes serving as a staff psychologist at DeVos Children's Hospital in Grand Rapids, Michigan where duties included neuropsychological testing and assessment, as well as behavioral counseling interventions. During that time, his work on neuropsychological deficits in children with cystic fibrosis was presented at the CF national conference and subsequently published in the Journal of Pediatric Pulmonology. He has also provided services in both inpatient and outpatient psychological practice settings, serving children, adolescents, and adults.

Mr. Oostindie's work in the area of neurofeedback has been recognized by local media several times in the West Michigan area. In addition, he was recognized for his work in the area of neurofeedback by a member of the United States Congress who sat on the Education Committee.

At this time, Mr. Oostindie oversees neurofeedback programming at Ready To Focus in both the office and home based settings. Additionally, he provides training to other therapists who desire to use neurofeedback as a treatment intervention. Ready To Focus has offices in West Michigan as well as the West and Southwest Chicago suburbs, providing office and home based neurofeedback services in 13 US States and 9 different countries.
